Fashion's Fancies in Fall Suits.

Every decree of Dame Fashion has been followed in the showing of our new Tailor-made Fall Suits. The cut, finish and fabric are eminently correct. They represent the choicest creations of a tailor's art. There is quite a perceptible change in the styles this year, so your last year's suit will not do. Our showing is not as complete as you will see it later, and yet you'd be hard please if one of the styles we are exhibiting now does not meet your fancy.

Commander McCrea Discusses Present Conditions.

DISORDERS IN HA TI

PROSPECTS AGAINST THEIR EARLY SETTLEMENT.

Lieut. Wright Reviews History of the Black Republics-A Reign of Continued Turbulence.

Commander McCrea, who has recently been guarding American interests at Haiti, and, with his vessel, the Machias, protecting international commerce from unwarranted interference, expressed himself as follows today to a representative of The Star regarding affairs in southern waters:

"The conditions to the southward at the present time are most interesting. In Venezuela as well as Colombia the rebels appear to be gaining not only in territory, but in organization and sympathy of the masses. The capture of Agua Dulce practically gives the liberals control of the isthmus, though some hard fighting will be necessary before the terminal cities fall, Panama and Colon being strongly intrenched. I consider it most wise that our government will send a large force there to insure the traffic and prevent trouble. The Ranger is an efficient vessel, but quite too small to furnish a landing party and train guard. In 1885 some criticism was made regarding the 800 marines sent there—'too many,' so the croakers said—but when our fine men accomplished the work without loss and made a lasting impression, the detail was ap-

"As regards Haitien affairs, the disap-"As regards Haitien affairs, the disappearance of the only gunboat removes the varying factor; it is now a question entirely on shore, which, with energy, might be settled quickly. The chances are not good for this, and a long guerrilla disturbance may result, unless a time is set for the finish. Some such measure might be taken on the grounds of friendly interference, but that question is always a delicate one."

A Reign of Turbulence.

Lieut. W. S. Wright, who spent a year on the Island of Santo Domingo gathering historical data, recently made a study of the political conditions in the two republies on the island. "They are not republies in any sense of the word," he said to a Star reporter. "They are military despotsms. While a republican form of government is preserved, the president is the sole power. The congress is chosen at his bidding and performs his behests. In the republic of Santo Domingo, for instance, presidential electors are chosen to serve presidential electors are chosen to serve four years. There is an educational qualification by which few vote, mostly whites
-Europeans. These electors are suggested as nominees by the candidate for president from among his supposed friends. There is seldom, probably never, more than one set of nominations; two would mean a revolution. These electors choose a president, vice president and a congress, and fill vacancies during the four years. The congress is suggested by the president also, and starts out solidly pro-administration in its political composition. It is entirely within the power of a president to have as-sassinated any congressman or congressmen becoming adverse to his policy that the electors might fill the vacancies with administration supporters. This is an ex-treme proposition, but not an impossibility under the system of government. The army and navy are under the control of the president, as are the finances. Congress does his bidding, approves whatever expenditure he may make without an appropriation and makes whatever appropriation he recommends. When it does not, when there is dissension in congress, or in the electoral college, a revolution follows. The one man has lost his power and another rises out of the chaos who imagines he is able to take his place as a dictator. This is not a republican from of government in any sense of the word. Power thus lodged in a president is nearly always abused. He becomes tyrannical, avaricious. revengeful, inhuman, unjust, sensual, according to the tendencies of his unrestrained nature. There are exceptions, but the system of government does not encourage them; it rather affords temptation and invites excesses. And too often a president is placed in power by those who expect to share with him the advantages which the system affords. If he did not yield, he would be deposed at once. If he attempted good government his adherents would discover that they were mistaken in him. Dessalines the Dictator.

"With the final withdrawal of France in 1806 Dessalines became ruler of the entire island. It was not then called a republic. He proclaimed himself emperor, as did Christophe, who succeeded him. Solique also declared himself an emperor. Under these emperors a nobility was created, the titles being selected by the recipients at will, with some grotesqueness, as the Dukes of Marmalade, Lemonade and Bobo appear in the blue book. Solique abdicated in 1859. In the meantime the republic of Santo Domin-go was organized in 1844 independent of Haiti on the west, thus dividing the island on the original lines when Spain owned the east two-thirds and France the west one-third. This action on the part of the east was resisted but not successfully, but in 1861 Santana, who was president of the east, wishing a strong power to uphold him, invited Spain to return. The sovereignty of Spain did not last long, as the people opposed it, and Spain was expelled in 1863. Haiti has thus claimed to be a re-1863. Haiti has thus claimed to be a republic continuously since 1859, and Santo Domingo since 1863, but whatever the title the government has been the same, a despotism, in both republics. It has been since 1806, however, that the attempt has been made at self-government. How successful this has been is best told by the following statement of the careers of the various rul-

Some Interference Necessary.

"I do not know of any reason why the United States should want the island, yet it seems that some interference will be necessary. That is only a question of time. The Monroe doctrine and duty to civilization will require prevention of the complete extermination, which is imminent, of the population. The difficulty is with the people themselves. Commander McCrea illustration of this ignorance the people in the interior were strong Boer sympathizers. They said the Boers were negroes, all Africans were negroes, and that England was "There should be an abolishment, by some interference, of the militarism, with its heavy expense, theft and massacre. A form of government just and equitable should be established. The boundary line between the two republics, which is merely a chip on the shoulder, an opportunity to imitate Europe and have an international question with chances about equal, should be defined. This is not a serious question, as the boundary is up in the inaccessible mountains somewhere and the land near it unoccupied and valueless. A joint agreement on tariffs might be entered into between the two republies. This is a fruitful source of dissension. Both countries adsource of dissension. Both countries admit goods at a low duty to be smuggled into the other at the lowland passes near the sea, and this destroys much of the rev-enue of each. Then with the knowledge suppress revolution and punish assassination they will be able to govern themselves. This is not a pleasant prospect for any foreign country, but it is that or complete con-
